Herman MBA Fellowships for Women

Are you a woman with a great idea? Do you dream of starting a business or solving a significant social or economic problem? An MBA scholarship program at the Lally School can help you achieve your goals.

Each year, through a generous gift, Rensselaer's Lally School of Management & Technology seeks unique women of vision and entrepreneurial spirit, and offers up to $30,000 in funding toward an MBA degree. The Herman Family Fellowship for Women in Entrepreneurship sponsors female MBA candidates who want to take their career to the next level at Lally.

Here at the Lally School, we provide a unique and nurturing environment for aspiring entrepreneurs.

Up Close & Personal: Our MBA program is small enough to offer individualized attention from faculty, but consistently ranks among the top 50 business programs in entrepreneurship, strategy and operations by Business Week, U.S. News and Entrepreneur magazines.

Established Mentoring Programs: The Severino Center for Technological Entrepreneurship offers mentoring and student/community entrepreneurship programs for students.

Strong Women Faculty: The Lally faculty includes a number of scholars specializing in innovation and entrepreneurship. Gina O'Connor, co-author of Radical Innovation and Grabbing Lightning, teaches Business Implications of Emerging Technologies (BIET) and focuses her research on how innovation can be sustained. Lois Peters, co-author of Grabbing Lightning and also a teacher for BIET, studies innovation and commercializing emerging technologies.

On Campus Incubator & Office of Technology Commercialization: The Rensselaer Incubator was the first university-based incubator in the U.S., and has been nurturing new ventures for over 25 years. Rensselaer is the nation's oldest technological university, and offers a well-established infrastructure and experience with intellectual property issues for business innovators.

Large, Supportive and Influential Network: Herman fellows gain access not only to the faculty and worldwide alumni network of Lally and RPI, but also to personal contact with fellowship sponsors Mike and Karen Herman, a variety of successful entrepreneurs and executives, and annual reunions with all prior recipients of the fellowship-an impressive group of women!
